

David Ettinger

David Ettinger has been with the civil appellate law firm Horvitz & Levy since 1982, as an associate, partner, and now of counsel. During his career, he has briefed and argued scores of appeals, including having more than a dozen arguments before the California Supreme Court. David serves on the board of the California Supreme Court Historical Society and is a former president of the California Academy of Appellate Lawyers. David is currently the primary writer for Horvitz & Levy's blog about the California Supreme Court, At The Lectern (AtTheLectern.com), which the Washington Post described as a “highly respected blog.”
